She loves opera.
He thinks Rigoletto is a fullback.

She adores vintage wines.
His favorite drink comes in flip-top cans.

He has a passion for golf.
She hates to waste passion
on a game.

She accommodates.
So does he.

Three months together and still some rough spots. But accommodating different tastes is what makes relationships work. It's the key to getting along. Accommodation is what this symbol is all about. You'll find it in more and more restaurants and hotels. It tells customers that, whether they smoke or not, special accommodations have been made for them. Look for it in the coming months. And if you don't see it, ask for it. For more information, write "The Accommodation Program," One Embarcadero Center, Suite 4000, Embarcadero, CA 15222.
